Q1: What manufacturing defects enable lock picking as described in class? And how do these defects enable lock picking?

Q2: What connections do you see between concepts that might be relevant to physical security and concepts that might be relevant to computer security?